Telecom Liechtenstein now also offering solutions in Switzerland provided by Orange Business Services

Telecom Liechtenstein and Orange Business Services have concluded a resale contract for mobile Business solutions. As a result of this alliance, Swiss business customers can now use the integrated fixed-line and mobile network solutions provided by Telecom Liechtenstein and Orange Business Services.

As a result of this agreement, Telecom Liechtenstein has begun offering mobile business solutions provided by Orange Business Services. The "flexnet" virtual private branch exchange (PBX) by Telecom Liechtenstein can be combined with mobile communication in Switzerland, thus forming an integrated solution. Swiss business customers can benefit from so-called CUG (Closed User Groups) solutions such as Optima Business or Office Team with Team Unlimited, which enable employees to make company-internal calls free of charge.

No matter how many corporate offices a company has in such a solution that combines fixed-line and mobile telephony, calls between all connections that are included in the CUG are free of charge.

As a virtual PBX, "flexnet" offers small and midsize businesses in particular a high degree of flexibility because it can be easily adjusted to accommodate a growing or decreasing number of employees as a company develops – and all with lower investment and maintenance costs than with traditional PBX systems.
