New Orange Switzerland CEO at the helm

Today is the first official working day for Thomas Sieber, the new CEO of Orange Switzerland who took up his position today after numerous working visits to other Orange subsidiaries. Already on his agenda for the first weeks in office are intensive discussions with customers, employees, government bodies, business partners and suppliers.

«In the coming weeks my attention will be focused on Orange customers, employees and partners; this will give me the opportunity to get to know all contacts personally,» stresses Thomas Sieber, referring to his appointment schedule.

Despite the many impressions and ideas gathered at Orange subsidiaries such as Austria, France, Slovakia and Belgium, Thomas Sieber is emphasizing continuity as the new head of Orange Switzerland. «My predecessor Andreas S. Wetter did an excellent job. Orange Switzerland is very well positioned in the market and is a highly profitable company. That is why I intend to increase the exchange of information with all participating groups in the coming weeks in order to have a detailed view of the different sectors. This will allow me to refine my vision of the future of the Company and better discern which route to take in writing the next chapter of Orange Switzerland's success story.»

Thomas Sieber came to Orange Switzerland from Fujitsu Technology Solutions (formerly Fujitsu Siemens Computers) and succeeds Andreas S. Wetter as CEO. Andreas S. Wetter is now chairman of Orange Switzerland's board of directors.
